

"View From My Window" by Pastor Everhart

Okay, its fall. I love fall. I just hate what's next. Alright, hate is perhaps too strong a word. The Bible instructs us to give thanks in all things. I suppose winter is a thing therefore I need to learn to be thankful not only in winter but for winter. Pray for me (and for you too if you have a similar bend). I know a few strange people that love winter; I'm hoping to become like them. Actually there is a lot to enjoy about the season: the holidays, there's something romantic about the first snow of the season, a fresh coating of snow can be beautiful, it makes soup and a hot cup of tea special... I really wouldn't mind winter at all if it didn't get so cold. Cold, that's it, that's what I strongly dislike about winter. Even normal cold is bearable, it's those wind chills! Do people who love winter not feel wind chills? Is it a mindset? Can I have certain brain cells cauterized so that I don't mind the cold? Can they do that without making me drool all the time or lose the feeling in my left foot? I know what you're thinking: I need all the brain cells I can get. Ha ha, very funny, everyone's a comedian. If in ten years I'm loving winter I'll know you prayed for me, if not at least I'll know who to blame.
