

"View From My Window" by Pastor Everhart

Smoke alarms: I've never had one save my life but I have been awakened several times by their distress call to have their batteries changed. Why can't their batteries run low during the day? Why can't they play soft music for twenty four hours before sounding that irritatingly shrill beep? Why don't they manufacture the same models of smoke detectors they did a dozen years ago so that when one needs replaced you don't have to redo the whole system? Have you priced nine volt batteries lately? I used to think having nine foot ceilings was really cool; then my smoke alarms started to need to be replaced. I wonder why they call them nine foot ceilings when it's the walls that are nine foot tall? 2:30 a.m.: that's when my latest alarm woke the whole household up to let us know it wanted a new battery. After it had a new source of power it let us know it wasn't going to stop beeping anyway. At least I have a new target for the next time I go shooting. I have a feeling that it will be a very cathartic experience. I wonder how many people have burned their house down just to stop their smoke alarm from continuing to producing that ear piercing noise?
