THE VIEW FROM MY WINDOW

I'd like to thank you for being on the other side of these weekly posts because I've found them very therapeutic for my soul. This venue has helped me to articulate some of my personal struggles & find coping skills for them. Two minor examples: vacuuming & bananas.

Earlier I stated that one of my goals was to stop hating the chore of vacuuming the floors by likening it to mowing the lawn, which I rather enjoy. I'm happy to report that the strategy has been working. Vacuuming has risen from "despised" to "I'm okay with it" on my chore meter.

Ever since I published the post about bananas driving me bananas I've developed a new strategy: every time I'm in a grocery store I buy 2 or 3 of their greenest bananas. I place those under the others I already have in our fruit bowl & now I have a continual supply of ripe ones rising to the top.

Overcoming the pains of life with God's help is what we'll be talking about this morning. Everyone has struggles; the keys are to suffer well, use the pain to get you to a better place & not to use your discontent as an excuse to display bad behavior.
