THE VIEW FROM MY WINDOW

Ants. Ants love spring. Ants love our house. I hadn't seen an ant all winter then suddenly they're marching through our home by the hundreds. Every year at this time we fight ants. We use granules, sprays, traps, fingers & toes to kill them. We fight them in the yard, garage, kitchen, bathroom & bedroom. I flipped the light on one night to see why the dog didn't want to go outside — her doggie yard was glistening with thousands of winged ants!

By mid-summer we've got the upper hand & by fall we feel like we've killed every ant in Pennsylvania but by the next spring they pop out of the ground like lava erupting from mini volcanoes. Every year my wife asks the same question, "Where are they all coming from?"

Ants are resilient, persistent, determined, committed little creatures. Whatever you used to kill them last year doesn't seem to work on their descendants. Ants remind me of Christians. Sometimes there are a lot of us, sometimes only a few but one day the earth will be ours! March on.
