THE VIEW FROM MY WINDOW

There is a stretch of sidewalk that runs along a local park I frequent with the grandkids. This particular section of walkway was narrower than any other in the area. I had reasoned that it must have been set in place before newer regulations called for wider pathways. This summer someone was hired to push back the grass that had grown on it & "edge" the pavement. Low & behold the sidewalk is as wide as any other in the city of Hanover!

Slowly but surely, year after year, grass infringed on the space reserved for feet. If left untended the sidewalk would have eventually disappeared altogether. Someone decided to act before that happened — and the results are dramatic.

Slowly but surely our morality & spirituality have been eroded over the years. Sin has become comfortable in places it should not be found. Christianity doesn't look like it used to. Christians are more worldly than godly. We need to act before truth disappears completely. It's time to consider our ways, to consider which direction we as a people are headed, & make some changes in order to recover territory that has been stolen. Otherwise, the path to God will completely disappear & we, as a nation, will be lost.
