THE VIEW FROM MY WINDOW

Scoters are all the rage in Hanover among its senior citizens. I don't mean motorized wheelchairs for the elderly but mini motorcycles for middle agers. Is it an effort to save on fossil fuels? Is it part of their mid-life crises? Is it about frugality?

As I leave Hanover in the morning to travel to East Berlin I often encounter an older lady coming down Hershey Hill on a red scooter. She wears a full helmet, goggles, & has safety flags flapping in the wind above her head. She reclines with her feet up just like Peter Fonda in Easy Rider. She is usually followed by anywhere from 7-12 other vehicles. But the look on her face is one of pure joy.

In my opinion, a scooter like hers is fine on residential streets but to head out on the highway one ought to use something with a little more horsepower. Whenever our individual pleasure blinds us to the needs of others we need a wakeup call. Truth may hurt or cost us something but in the end it will save our life.
