The View
From My Window
WITH PASTOR JOEL

I overheard a conversation in a place of business one morning. The people talking were in the back room & didn't know I or anyone else was out front. Surely if they had realized how far their voices carried they wouldn't have been talking so freely – at least, I hope not.

One employee was going on about her bitterness toward another employee. She can't even stand to look at this person let alone be in the same room with her for any period of time. Her reason: "Anytime she talks to me her attitude & words are full of disgust for me." At least the feelings are mutual.

I just couldn't help but wonder how this person thought her words weren't creating a worse work environment for all concerned. The chances of her attitude not being communicated by one of her fellow workers to the jerk in question are zero. That will obviously throw fuel on the fire ... Oh that our words would bring reconciliation & healing rather than division & bitterness!
